G. O. P. WINNING
BY 1928 MARGINChairman Senses a Feeling of Defeatism in Democratic Speeches

NOTIFY KNOX JULY 30

Plan Chicago Campaign Headquarters With Barton Research Bureau at Capital

WASHINGTON, June 25.—In Washington for the better part of the week
to arrange the details of splitting the Republican organization into three working segments preparatory to launching the Landon-Knox campaign under full steam by July 1, the enthusiastic young John Hamilton, chairman of Republican National Committee,
sensed "growing fears" in every successive Democratic speech being made in Philadelphia.

A reversal which will restore the Republican majorities of 1928 was the confident but informal prediction on the outcome of the 1936 election made here today by Hamilton.

"I never saw a crowd more scared
and less willing to admit it," he continued, with a vivid assurance which showed he was willing at all times to take the play of claims away from the Democratic Chairman, James A. Farley who heretofore has monopolized
this field.

Hamilton was plainly unimpressed
by the fact that he was talking within a stone's throw of the White House, where President Roosevelt was working on the acceptance speech he will deliver to the Democratic Convention Saturday night. Quite the contrary, the Republican chairman is convinced,
and said so, that the sentiment running since the Cleveland convention means the defeat of the New Deal in November.

But before he discussed the chances of Republican success, he outlined briefly what was uppermost in his mind—the immediate plans for the Republican campaign organizations.

Swiftly, he announced that the nomination ceremonies for Colonel Frank Knox, Republican Vice Presidential candidate, will take place in Chicago July 30, as a fitting sequel to the acceptance formalities for Governor Alfred M. Landon in Topeka, Kansas, July 23.

The G. O. P. headquarters in Washington will be moved to Chicago, where the campaign will be directed. Major activities in seventeen States on the Eastern seaboard will be directed from a New York office in charge of Rep.
Joseph W. Martin, of Massachusetts, while a research bureau will continue its work in Washington.

Bruce Barton, now in the research bureau, will stay, but announcement of changes in personnel will be made from time to time, Hamilton said.

The Republican chairman also announced that Mrs. Robert Lincoln Hoyal, who has been in charge of the woman's division, will become an active assistant chairman of the committee. She is the first woman to have held the post and will act in that capacity with the other assistant chairmen, Charlton McVeagh, of New York; Harrison Shangler, of Iowa, and Arthur M. Curtis, of Kansas.

Hamilton talked today with Mrs.
Dolly Gann, sister of the late Vice President Charles H. Curtis, and said she expected to have an active part in the campaign.

What liaison will be established between the Republican National Committee and the Senatorial and Congressional Campaign Committees had not been worked out, Hamilton said, but he assumed that details would develop quickly to take every advantage of a situation where Republicans expect to make substantial gains in the next House of Representatives.

"I expect to go West within a week
to get it started as I have a speaking engagement in Columbus, Ohio, July 1," Hamilton said before he turned to election forecasts, and comment on Democratic Convention speeches elicited by the questions of his interviewers.

"We didn't know how fast the sentiment of the country against the New Deal is growing until after the Cleveland convention," said Hamilton. "But we are beginning to find out. That is why I am so confident. Perhaps I wouldn't be so confident if I took my old friend Jim Farley seriously, but I

PLUNDERBUND TRIO
EXPOSED IN COURTInjunction Proceedings Bring Many Irregularities
To Light

HALT PUBLIC HEARINGS

HARRISBURG, June 25.—Brazen use of WPA funds to buy Democratic votes; New Deal jobbers given preference when WPA equipment and material are needed; insistence that both relief and non-relief workers secure New Deal indorsement; payrolls padded so that favored persons perform low-salaried duties while classified in higher brackets—these and many other pernicious activities of the Earle-Guffey-Lawrence plunderbund were exposed in Federal Court here in the injunction proceedings to restrain permanently a State Senate committee from investigating abuses and political manipulation of the Works Progress Administration in Pennsylvania.

Judge Albert W. Johnson of the Federal Court, Middle District of Pennsylvania, held his decision under advisement and also ruled that the order restraining the committee, headed by State Senator G. Mason Owlett, of Tioga County, from conducting further public hearings, shall continue in force. The legal arguments by former Senator George Wharton Pepper and former State Attorney General William A. Schnader, for the Owlett Committee and Assistant United States Attorney General John Dickinson for the government, while absorbing were secondary in importance to sensational statements contained in reply affidavits filed by counsel for the respondents. Dickinson objected to their admission. Judge Johnson will also rule on that later.

Pertinent facts in the affidavits filed charged irregularities in the administration of WPA in Pennsylvania allegedly amounting to criminal violation of punitive sections of the Federal Emergency Relief Act of 1935, which created WPA. It is charged that these violations were reported to President Roosevelt and Federal Emergency Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins in detail in sworn affidavits four months ago.

Two of these, sworn to by Irwin R.
Williamson and Raymond Wheelock, former members of the WPA supervisory staff in the Philadelphia area,
painted an almost incredible picture of the manipulation of WPA in Pennsylvania for the single purpose of perpetuating the Democratic State Organization.

Williamson testified at the half-day
session of the second public hearing held by the committee in Harrisburg
—the hearing on June 3, which was interrupted by the restraining order issued by Federal District Judge Albert W. Johnson, returnable for argument here today.

His affidavit reviews the testimony
which he gave up to its mandatory interruption, explaining that a definite
"invisible control" of WPA projects,
of the selection of non-relief pre-designated WPA employees, and to some extent of those actually chosen from relief rolls, was established in the Philadelphia district.

He related that he had been informed that Edward N. Jones, State WPA administrator, had said that WPA was to be "run by the Democratic Party," and told of his own experiences in being compelled to change his political registration from Republican to Democratic in order to qualify for his job as assistant to Louis Rohrbach.

He said that a "Mr. Green," later identified as F. C. Green, was "political supervisor" of WPA pre-designated jobs in the office of John H. Rankin, Philadelphia WPA administrator, for the counties in the area outside of Philadelphia, while Michael J. Byrne was the clearing officer for such political endorsements in the county of Philadelphia.

Wheelock's affidavit relates his former connection with LWD, and his application for a similar post with WPA. Like Williamson, he was directed to change his party affiliation
and secure political indorsement, and in due course he was given the post of assistant head of educational and recreational projects in Delaware county, under Joseph Carey. His political indorsement was gained, as was Williamson's, through John Stinson, State Highway Department supervisor and Upper Darby Democratic leader, and Barrett.

FACTS ARE FACTS

(New York American, June 25, 1936)

Let those who are still under the infatuation of the empty promises and predictions, groundless hopes and the absurd
delusions of the Raw Deal, ponder the following facts:

They should have particular interest for the nation's farmers and stock raisers.

More CATTLE were imported into the United States in the year 1935 than in the four previous years combined—the first four months of 1936 showing increases even over the startling record of importations in 1935.

The same is true of CANNED BEEF.

More WHEAT was imported last year than in the twelve preceding years taken together. In 1935 occurred the FIRST UNFAVORABLE BALANCE OF TRADE IN WHEAT
SINCE THE CIVIL WAR.

More CORN was imported into the United States during the first four months of 1936 than in five full years prior to 1935. The imports of corn in 1935 were almost double the total corn imports for the preceding fifteen years.

The imports of BARLEY soared from 60,000 pounds in 1922 to 320,623,000 pounds in 1935.

A similar great increase in the importations of OATS and BUTTER for the year 1935 is revealed in official figures.

* * *

Now as to exports. The steady upward curve in imports is replaced, when it comes to exports, by an equally uniform downward curve.

Our exports of WHEAT in 1935 were less than 5 per cent of our wheat exports in any average post-war year.

During the first three years of the Raw Deal, wheat exports were less than 20 per cent of the last three years of even the Hoover Administration.

The exports of TOBACCO during the last year were the lowest since the recent war.

The exportation of PORK products will be even less in 1936 than in 1935, when they sank to an unprecedented low, being less than 7 per cent of the total in the remote year of 1920.

The exports of COTTON during the past two years of the Raw Deal have been the lowest recorded in the century, except in the year 1923.

Now, for the first time since the Civil War, the United States is furnishing less than one-half of the world cotton supply.

* * *

Facts are facts—and all the Raw Deal orators and the propaganda, maintained at the public expense by the present Administration, cannot even blur or confuse THESE FACTS
—much less refute them.

The L. D. Davis Adhesive Corporation, Ontario and Bath streets, Philadelphia, has purchased the three one-story steel mills at Edgely, formerly occupied by Beers-Tapman, Inc.

Today a clerk at the Davis Corporation offices in Philadelphia declined to answer any questions concerning the new industry and stated that L. D.
Davis, who was in New York, was the man authorized to speak for the firm.

The Beers-Tapman firm went into bankruptcy several years ago after being engaged in the fabrication of steel. The plant is located along the P. R. R. and is well situated. The property was held at $15,000 but the purchase price has not been revealed.

The Davis firm in the telephone directory is listed "L. D. Davis Co.,

Slight Current Can Cause Death, Research Shows

People can die from the slight electric current which runs through such ordinary home utilities as a toaster,
a vacuum cleaner, or a refrigerator;
but scientists never knew why until just recently. After nine long years of research, three men from Columbia University have found that it is the amount of electricity which passes through the body, not the strength of the current which is dangerous.

Experimenting on animals, under an anesthetic, these men studied the action of the heart. They found that when electricity passes through the heart, the normal action of the heart is stopped and it begins to twitch and quiver spasmodically. If these spasms are not stopped immediately, death
will occur within a few minutes.

The only time an electric shock will not result in death is when the shock lasts only one-third the time of a heart beat. And the only way to bring the heart out of the spasms is to apply a "counter-shock." Such a shock must be of high intensity and of very short duration.

The men who carried on this study are from the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia University and the Bell Telephone Laboratories.

Sessions Arranged

CLASS AT THE SHORE

YARDLEY, June 25.—The Daily Vacation Bible School of Yardley Methodist Church will begin on Monday.
Sessions will be held each day except Saturday from 9 to 11.46 a. m.

Miss Anna Wright is director of religious education and will have charge of the registration. The teachers will include: Beginners, Miss Lillian Van Artesdale; primary, Mrs. Jesse Bilbee; junior, Miss Helen Dansbury; intermediate, Mrs. Francis C. Thomas; recreational director, Miss Dorothy B.
Hayes; and boys' handicraft, David C.
Johnson.

"The Forget-Me-Nots," a Sunday School class in the Yardley Methodist Church under leadership of Miss Holen Dansbury and Mrs. Hunter Smith, have left for a week's stay at a cottage in Seaside Heights, N. J. The party includes: Mina Drager, Catherine Brewer, Marion Hunt, Edith Miller,
Mary B. Miller, Dorothy Johnson,
Marie Murray and Catherine Worrell.

Mrs. Alfred A. Danser, president of Bucks County Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Harvey J. Funk, president of Yardley Civic Club; accompanied by Mrs. Paul Bennett, Langhorne;
Mrs. William Barbour, Newtown; Mrs.
Walter Farley, Makefield, attended a president's council at the Philadelphia
New Century Club rooms. Mrs. Alfred A. Crooks, state vice president in charge of the Southeastern district, presided. Mrs. Danser also attended a luncheon at the home of Mrs. Crooks at Norwood, at which time plans were made for the meeting of the Southeastern district to be held in Perkasie in the Fall.

The Rev. Francis C. Thomas, president of the North District of the Philadelphia Conference Epworth League, entertained the cabinet officers at a supper conference at his home. As this was the first meeting of the new year,
a series of projects for the missionary department, the social service department and the recreational department, were discussed and approved. A report of the annual convention recently held in the Calvary Methodist Church in Easton was given. Reports were made by each group president and other members of the cabinet.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bensch and son William, Wilson avenue, spent the week-end in Passaic, N. J., visiting relatives.

Anthony Juno Has Party On Fifth Anniversary

Anthony Juno, son of Mr. and Mrs.
Carlo Juno, Lafayette street, was five years old, Tuesday, and in the evening from seven to nine o'clock he was host to a number of little friends at a party given by his parents. Games were played and Alfred Daniels won the prize for pinning the tail on the donkey.

Refreshments were served to: Gloria Greco, Emma Lou Neill, Veronica Capella, Rita Gargarella, Jennie Ballestiero, Theresa Juno, Ann Louise Fandozi, Clara Pieo; Alfred Daniels, Em-

WATER BACKED BY BEAVER DAM COVERS WIDE AREAHome of Colony at Tullytown Is Evidently To Be Permanent One

FARMER GIVEN AID

"Mr. and Mrs. Busy Beaver and children have taken up their permanent residence on Nameless Creek, Tully-town."

This might read a social item in the
"Woodland Echo."

One and one-half years ago, when Mr. and Mrs. Beaver first arrived in the neighborhood, there was some discussion among the various human residents as to whether they would like their new surroundings, whether all would go well with them, and if they would abide to see the arrival of children and grandchildren. But the conjecture has run into fulfillment, now,
and with numerous progeny, it is safe
to say that the residence is "permanent."

Some of the land-owners, from whom the beavers "rent" their homes, are pleased with the tenants, others are decidedly not. They are quiet tenants, and never bother a soul as far as noise is concerned, but the work of their busy hours has begun to show in a decidedly large way. For approximately 15 acres of land has been flooded with water, backed up by the huge dam
they have built zig-zag fashion.

One of the land-owners, Thomas Smith, is not at all sorry the beavers have arrived, and seem glad to stay.
For he has given permission to the Edgely Rod and Gun Club to call in the state police if necessary during any trapping season, in order that full protection might be afforded Busy Beaver and his wife and little ones, whose home borders on the Smith farm.

The members of the Stackhouse family, on the William Stackhouse Estate, are anxious to have the beavers remain also; but not so with Henry Killian, who claims that four acres of pasture land have been inundated by the water backed up from the long,
long dam which the industrious creatures have erected. According to Mr.
Killian it was impossible for him to

Woman Injured in Crash Of Automobile and Truck

Mrs. Catherine Graham, Southamp-

where she is being treated for injuries sustained in an automobile accident yesterday afternoon.

The collision, in which the woman
was hurt, was between her automobile,
and a truck, at the intersection of Bristol Pike and Newportville Road.

Mrs. Graham is being treated for lacerations of the right knee, contused
wound of the left knee, right elbow and left arm. It is stated that she was enroute west on Bristol Pike, and that the truck travelling in the opposite direction, was about to turn into New-portville Road, when the accident occurred.

VACATION TIME, DANGER TIME FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN

Withdrawal of protection by school safety patrols at the closing of the school year last week means that children are faced with a period of unusual danger from a traffic standpoint.
W. L. Robinson, Safety and Traffic Director of the Automobile Club of Philadelphia, A. A. A., declared today.
"Constant protection of school children during most of the year by the safety patrols and by specially assigned policemen, with the additional influence of the daily school safety lessons, impresses on youngsters the great need for caution at all times in crossing traffic lanes," he continued.
"Without these daily reminders, children are apt to become forgetful and to show a greater degree of careles-ness. Vacation time always is featured by a number of children either playing in the streets or dashing heed-
lessly across them on skates, scooters
or wagons.

"This situation obviously places a greater degree of responsibility on motorists who should always drive with the utmost care, particularly in residential sections where large numbers of children are likely to be at play.

"More important still, however, is the added burden placed upon parents to watch out for the safety of their own children. A surprisingly large number of parents are too content to let safety of their children depend on

LATEST NEWS - - -Received by International News Service Leased Wires.Supreme Court An Issue

By Edwin C. Hill

(Copyright, 1936, by I. N. S.)

Philadelphia, June 25.—The issue of the power and authority of the Supreme Court will be to the Presidential campaign of 1936 what the issue of the preservation of the gold standard was to the campaign of 1896.

This is the first conviction of a great many thoughtful Democrats here, after adjusting the plain hint given by Senator Barkley of Kentucky, spokesman for the President and the New Deal,
and after studying the attitude of labor
leaders, appeared before the platform
committee of the Convention.

James A. Farley, national chairman, has laid down the major issue as continuance of the New Deal. But it is recognized, of course, that there can be no continuance of the New Deal policy if the Supreme Court of the United States continues to destroy one after another of the New Deal laws.

A great deal of quiet thought is being given to this subject, and the Convention jogs along. Every effort has been made to soft peddle anything like outright denunciation of the high court for wrecking the NRA, the Triple A,
the Guffey Coal Act and other administration laws.

Keynoteur Barkley's language was restrained and most carefully chosen,
though no one could doubt the thought
between the lines.

Specification on this point, is of course, specification, but some drastic step will be taken if the New Deal wins the election for certain.

KEITH M. ROSSER NAMED
AS SCHOOL BOARD MEMBERAppointed for the Unexpired Term of Mrs. David O.
Taylor, Deceased

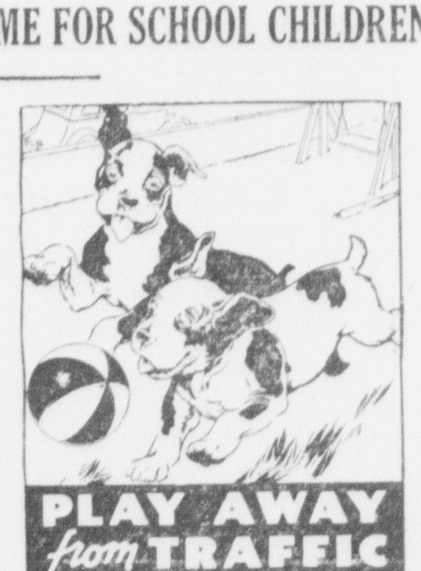

LIVED HERE 13 YEARS

At a special meeting of the Bristol
school board held Tuesday evening, Keith M. Rosser was named a member of the board, for the unexpired term of Mrs. David O. Taylor, deceased.

Mr. Rosser resides at 315 McKinley street, and has been a resident of Bristol for 13 years. He is affiliated with a number of organizations here
and is well known.

Mr. Rosser is a member of Bristol
Lodge, No. 25, F. & A. M.; Bristol Lodge of Elks, Exchange Club, and Bristol Glee Club.

Mr. Rosser's term will expire in 1937.

others. I think it only fair to say that any parent who does not do all in his power to protect his child from traffic dangers during the summer months is derelict in his duty.

"A further measure of providing greater safety for children is the provision of adequate play spaces either through more extensive municipal playgrounds or play yards on whatever vacant lots or back yards of residences are available. Provision of such play spaces is one of the most important contributions that can be made to the cause of child safety for it effectively persuades them not to play in the traffic lanes where they are in constant danger."

MORRISVILLE GIRL
WINS SCHOLARSHIP
THROUGH AN ESSAYMiss Flora Petersen, Who Graduated from High School, Tuesday, Is the Winner

ESSAY IS PUBLISHED

Given Subject Was "Crime—A Challenge to American Youth"

Publication is made of the Bucks County prize-winning essay in the American Legion contest, the given subject of which was "Crime—A Challenge to American Youth."

The Bucks County winner is Miss Flora Petersen, Morrisville, who by virtue of this accomplishment has been awarded a scholarship to Pennsylvania State College. The scholarship was arranged by the American Legion of the Ninth District of Pennsylvania, through the courtesy and co-operation of State Senator Clarence J. Buckman.

Miss Petersen, the winner from Bucks County, graduated on Tuesday evening from Morrisville high school, where she had been a most active student, taking interest in dramatics and other extra-curricular activities, as well as showing keenness in her studies.

The awards to a young man and
young woman in the county schools,
who were runners-up, will be medals.

This is the first year the essay contest has been conducted, and similar prizes are given in some other coun-

GETTING THINGS DONE

There is a faculty given to some men that it is hard to find a phrase for. It is the faculty of getting things done.

It is a gift. A man may have ability, education, training and ambition, and still lack the genius that gets things done. Another man who has had little or no education and whose training has been of the most haphazard, without any fuss or ado will seem to accomplish the impossible.

Part of it, perhaps, is a daring to tackle things that seem impossible to others. Perhaps another part is made up of intense concentration and steady patient work. There is always a sort of placid certainty about the man who gets things done.

In almost any small community can be found the man to whom the residents inevitably turn when something especially difficult to solve comes up in the life of the community. For some reason this man is seldom in an official position. He seems to have no flair for politics. He is more apt to be found running a business of his own and taking a comfortable and unostentatious part in the affairs of the village. He may be a diamond in the rough. He never dictates. He never boasts. He never exaggerates. He never scolds. But somehow, as if by a magic touch, when something is badly needed, he manages to get it done.

In the larger communities and the big cities it takes longer for the man who gets things done to be recognized, but eventually he is discovered and used. He resembles the man of the smaller communities, only his opportunities are larger and therefore his accomplishment seems more important.

Not always does he get the credit for it. And it is characteristic of him that he doesn't care.

WHAT'S THE IDEA?

When Mr. Farley has a moment to spare we wish that, as chairman of the Democratic party, he would explain to us why there has to be a conclave of the faithful and their duly elected representatives at Philadelphia?

We know, of course, the stated purposes, such as the nomination of candidates for President and Vice-President and the adoption of a platform. But we also know, and so does everyone else, precisely who those candidates will be. And while we may not know the exact contents of the platform, we know that the convention will have nothing to say about what went into it, and that it will all be forgotten in a few days anyhow.

So why disturb the peace of Philadelphia, a notoriously peaceful city? Why trouble the ether with all kinds and types of political speeches from the one beginning "My friends" on down? And why crowd the newspaper headlines with stuff people know even before they read?

Of course neither Mr. Farley nor anybody else will explain the Philadelphia mystery. Politicians never tell ordinary people what they would like to know. It's one of those things. It will mean nothing one way or another as to platform or candidates for office, but the Democrats have foregathered in Philadelphia just the same.

Arrested in Hold-up: "Lone Robber Seizes $10,000 in Jewels"; "Police Battle With Thugs"; "Purse Snatcher Pursued by Crowd on Fifth Avenue"; "No Clue To Mysterious Tenement Murder." Such are the headlines which usurp a great portion of the space in American newspapers today. Hundreds of thousands of crime novels are sold in cheap book stores, while the Sunday supplements of practically all newspapers invariably feature the most atrocious and barbarous murders. Moving pictures are considered as lacking "thrill" unless they are crammed full of murder and crime. Even the comic strips have gone into crime. It has been estimated that about one out of every three features some criminal activity under the pretense of humor.

Why does this condition exist? It is because America is crime-conscious, and sensational reports of desperate criminal adventures are eagerly devoured by the American public. The youth of the country is drawn into this

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Caused by Tired Kidneys

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are one of Nature's chief ways of taking acids and wastes out of the blood. A healthy person should pass about 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste matter. If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, waste stays in the body and may become poisonous. It may start nagging backaches, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Don't let it lay you up.

Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills—used successfully by millions for over 45 years. They give happy relief and will help to flush out the 15 miles of kidney tubes. Get Doan's Pills. (Advertisement)

"KING OF HEARTS"

BY EDNA ROBB WEBSTER

SYNOPSIS

Try as she might, Lynn Bartel, young mannequin at Dunning's, could not be intimate with the girls at the shop. It was not that she acted superior, but her innate good breeding and aristocratic bearing set her on a higher social level than the others. Lynn's mother had been a southern society belle, but the sacrificed wealth and position to marry John Bartel and go to Chicago with him. Following his death, Marion Bartel preferred to struggle along in meagre circumstances rather than return to her family. It was Mrs. Bartel's desire that Lynn have the best training and background possible so, despite financial straits, she sent her to the exclusive Mervin-Heath School. Lynn had no friends for she could not invite her schoolmates to the simple room she shared with her mother at Mrs. Kime's boarding house, and Mrs. Bartel never permitted her to associate with girls she met elsewhere. Mrs. Bartel planned great things for her daughter but she died while the girl was still at school.

CHAPTER II

So Lynn continued on alone thereafter, not knowing what else to do. That is, she continued to live at Mrs. Kime's, alone. But she immediately left Mervin-Heath School for girls, and searched for work. There was a little money after everything was settled, but so very little that Lynn grew frightened with a tight feeling in her throat when she contemplated its meager provision for living. No training for work and no experience had promised for a couple of weeks to increase her initial timid fear to positive alarm; but one day her beauty had triumphed over Mr. Lawry's stern judgment, when he needed very much another model who could wear clothes, for a style show. Lynn had held tenaciously to that poor little position and salary, like a mountain climber clinging to the edge of a precipice over a deep abyss.

After the first fears had been vanquished and she had settled into the drab routine of her new life, she discovered that her studies were still a pleasant and absorbing diversion, and that life could be worse. She loved the theater and had displayed some talent in dramatics at school. Her mother had visioned such a career for Lynn, perhaps, if that were her inclination.

So Lynn attended the theater as often as she dared. A balcony seat at a first-run show was her only occasional extravagance. Sometimes, she took Mrs. Kime with her, for her companionship and to express her gratitude for many kindly services and attentions. The older woman's refinement and genteel appearance, even though she did keep a lodging house, had been the reason for Marion Bartel's selection of her home. After her death, Mrs. Kime's maternal interest had broadened toward Lynn, and she now treated her almost as a daughter. Lynn did not know what she would have done, had there been no Mrs. Kime for a barrier between her and complete isolation. And on these bitter cold evenings it was good to be going home to her comfortable room. It was warm and cheerful, and made a little more livable with a few beautiful objects which her mother had added to its heterogeneous furnishings.

She opened the front door, and the wind snatched from her hands and flung wide, to hurl a cloud of snowflakes into the dim hall before she could close it again. The spicy odor of baked ham assailed her with a sense of pleasant hunger, which the cold walk had provoked. Lynn enjoyed the walk from the Lstation, after being confined in the store all day and parading over soft carpets while smug women stared at her.

The walk in the cold fresh air made her feel cleansed and revived.

"Hello," she called cheerfully, hearing Mrs. Kime in the dining-room at the end of the hall. "Something smells awfully good."

"Terrible night, isn't it?" Mrs. Kime deplored from the doorway. "Did you see—there's a letter for you, honey. On the table."

"Oh—thank you," Lynn turned back to the little walnut console table where the mail was stacked neatly for the roomers. She seldom ever glanced at it because she received very few letters. Her correspondents were as limited as her friends.

But she selected the letter from the stack with a warm glow of pleasure and carried it upstairs to nied there ever had been an emancipation proclamation. For Dot's indulgent father controlled humming sugar refineries which crystalized vast plantations of sugar cane into the sweetening for millions of cups of morning coffee.

Colonel Merchon was a contrary within himself; being shrewd and affable, stern and humorous. But the one adjective which best described his attitude toward his daughter, was indulgent. He gratified her every whim. If it happened to be beyond his personal power to bestow a desire, he arranged everything so that another might do so. Dot was like an idol to Colonel Merchon. But she was a benevolent one, because she adored and spoiled her father quite as much in return.

Doti lived in New Orleans in a colonial mansion.

her room. It was not an anonymous advertisement, and she had no accounts for which to receive statements.

Lynn dropped the letter on the dresser while she removed her wraps and mused on its contents. It must be from Doti. The cramped and heavy handwriting of the address on the envelope indicated that. It was so like her cousin's small and dark, and commanding attention. And the writing was as difficult to read as Doti was baffling. You liked and admired her at the same time, she puzzled you. Her mother, whom she called Zola and professed to love beyond anyone in the world, never quite felt as if she knew her own child.

"Doti" was her own abbreviation of the name with which she had been christened, which was Dorothy. When she was a tiny, dark thing—all dusky curls and red lips commanding attention wherever she went—she never employed the first personal pronoun in referring to herself. It was always, "Doti is going to do this" or "Doti wants to do that." Doti, she became. And Doti always did exactly as she wished.

She lived in New Orleans in a pretentious Colonial mansion shrouded in moss-draped oaks like decorative canopies, where a score of colored servants attended the family with a devotion which de-

Zola understood neither of them, and sometimes felt like an alien in her own household. But she had a multitude of her own interests to absorb her, the Colonel provided her an extravagantly beautiful existence and Lynn was a devoted daughter. What more could she desire?

The two had seen Lynn for the first time in many years when they had gone north to pay their last respects to Zola's estranged sister. Marian's one last request had been to remain in the northern city beside John; which was respected. After it was all over, Zola had insisted that Lynn was going home with them, either to visit for awhile or to remain indefinitely. But Lynn was just as insistent that she could not. In fact, enough more so that they had returned south without her. Lynn had preferred to remain where she felt she belonged. If her mother had wished her to live in the south in the surroundings of her own youth, she would have taken her there. No doubt, she had chosen the best for her daughter. Zola had proffered her money, also, but Lynn wished to carry on her mother's traditions of pride and independence. What her mother had done alone, with a child, she could do alone, without incumbrances surely.

net of suggestive flagrancy which cannot but prove immensely harmful.

It is evident that crime is a national issue of the greatest magnitude. Dwight H. Green, United States District Attorney, recently declared that "crime is costing the citizens of this country over $12,000,000,000 a year, an amount far in excess of that required to operate all the functions of the government." During the year 1934, there were approximately thirty-five murders in our country every day. Dr. Frederick L. Hoffman, consulting statistician, has divulged the fact that during the year 1931 there were over twenty times as many murders in the United States as there were in England and Wales during the same year. "In three-fourths of the major crimes committed in 1933 the criminals were never brought to justice," asserts Professor Sellin of the University of Pennsylvania.

Let these figures serve to be the United States alarming clock.

The crime problem claims the particular attention of youth due to two reasons. First, statistics show that youths remain the most persistent law violators. The Department of Justice has revealed the fact that 49 percent of the crime records examined by the department's Bureau of Investigation involved persons less than twenty-five years of age. Youths nineteen years of age lead the nation's crime procession, according to the Bureau of Investigation.

The second reason why the crime problem especially interests youth lies in the fact that it is upon their shoulders that the treatment of the problem will rest in a few years. It is they who can, by a proper comprehension and knowledge of the underlying principles of crime, and by pursuing the course of action, bring to pass a great decrease in the percentage of crime in the United States.

The United States is desperately in need of a drastic revision of her present policies in the attempt to thwart the progress of crime. Listed below are a number of courses which should be followed.

The Federal and State governments should co-ordinate in facilitating constructive, educational, vocational and recreational opportunities for the youth of the land.

The American public should join in hearty condemnation of unduly dramatic crime stories, and glorification of the criminal in press, periodical and screen.

Hamlet included "the law's delay" and "the insolence of office" among his list of the chief ills of this life. Definite forward steps should be taken toward a substantial improvement in our criminal procedure.

Our laws concerning the carrying of concealed weapons are entirely too lax. It is necessary that we have stringent weapon laws. We must disarm the criminal.

The people of the United States ought to be given a sense of economic security. Miss Katherine F. Lenroot, chief of the Children's Bureau, has said: "Economic security is the most important measure of crime prevention before us today, because it is fundamental to normal and wholesome home life."

Of inestimable value in crime prevention is proper home training. It is in the home that stability of character is developed. Noble character instilled in early childhood has a lasting effect, and enables the individual possessing it to waive aside all temptations and stand for that which is true and right, even in the face of gravest opposition.

Is the youth of our land willing to stand by and witness little or no attempt made to curb the crime which today is rampant in our country? No, they are not! If the older citizens are willing to allow our nation to become stagnant in crime, be it known that thinking young people are not, and that as soon as they reach an age at which they are accorded the privilege of having a part in the government, they shall take drastic, far-reaching, and permanent steps toward a minimization of crime in the United States of America.

Yes, Youth accepts the challenge!

Hamilton Predicts G. O. P. Winning By 1928 Margin

haven't been able to do that since the summer of 1934, when he made a speech in Salt Lake City and told the people that we were having the most economical Federal Administration the country has had for years."

The new Republican Chairman predicted that for every vote the third party campaign of Rep. William Lemke, of North Dakota, might take from the Republicans it would take "six to nine" votes from President Roosevelt.

"Aren't you a bit concerned about the millions that are about to be poured into the North Central States?" asked one questioner, referring to the present plans of the Administration to expend an estimated $50,000,000 of WPA funds in drought-stricken States of North and South Dakota, Eastern Montana and Wyoming and Western Minnesota.

Hamilton said it did "look a bit suspicious," but insisted that any votes the proposed party movement would receive would be drawn largely from what has been New Deal quarters.

"Assuming the Lemke candidacy goes through and his name gets on the ballot, it will materially help the Republican campaign in the Northern Mississippi Valley. The sound farmer is going to vote the Republican ticket this fall, and that leaves the rest of votes to be divided by Roosevelt and Lemke."

As a measure of his confidence that the farmer of the Midwest is no longer

"fooled" by the New Deal program, Hamilton cited the victory in West Kansas in 1934 of Rep. Clifford Hope, who voted in Congress against the AAA and was able two years ago to surmount the flood of "wheat" checks that went into his district in that election campaign.

Hamilton declined to mince words or qualify when attempts were made to pin him down to States. He estimated that the Republicans should carry all but six or seven States, and those the traditional Democratic block in the South.

"The issues in this campaign are more fundamental than they were in 1928 when Smith lost States in the South," continued Hamilton, indicating that he believed the Republicans had an excellent chance to duplicate or approach their sweep of that year when Herbert Hoover carried Virginia, North Carolina, Texas, Tennessee and Florida.

"Maryland is in the bag," Hamilton said in answer to a direct question, and he added that the same could be said for the Western States. The East, he believed, on the basis of what he has learned since the Cleveland convention, is well taken care of.

The Republican chairman reiterated his willingness to receive the co-operation of former Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York and former Governor Joseph B. Ely, of Massachusetts, two of the group of five Democrats who signed the round-robin against the New Deal made public in the form of a telegram on the eve of the Philadelphia convention.

"I would be tickled to death," Hamilton said again, "if Governor Smith would take the stump for the Republican ticket, and that goes for other prominent Democrats who cannot follow this Administration."

While refraining from detailed comment on the keynote speech of Senator Alben W. Barkley at the Democratic National Convention last night, Hamilton did allude to Senator Barkley's reference to the Republican "wailing" over "a few little pigs."

"I wouldn't say 'a few little pigs' when the figures show it was 6,446,000 or one-tenth of the number in the United States," said Hamilton referring to a memorandum, "and the plowing under of 10,400,000 acres of cotton in 1933. That is quite a few rows of cotton."

Water Backed By Beaver Dam Covers Wide Area

reach the pasture land, or the tract where he has 15 acres of hay, as well as the field where he must needs plant corn, due to the private road-way being under water. But the beavers apparently recognize no rights when it comes to "private" roadways. Then too the Killian cow was unable to reach her pasture-plot.

As a result of the covering of the long lane on the Killian property with water, and with a desire to protect the beavers, the Edgely Rod and Gun Club offered to raise the bed of the road, in order that the Killians might reach their crops, and continue with their plantings and harvests. Consequently 15 men, members of the club, assembled early Sunday morning at the Killian farm. They were armed with the necessary tools, and likewise had commandeered two trucks. In the trucks they hauled broken pieces of tile recovered from the pile of stone that once was a smoke-stack at the Bristol Patent Leather Company plant. Fifty tons were hauled in all, and dumped into the swampy section. To date 350 feet of road-way has been filled in, with 50 feet yet to be finished. The distance from the dam to the Killians' private roadway is about one-half mile.

The small stream on which the beavers have built their dam, runs between the property of the Messrs. Stackhouse and Killian, and likewise makes its course through the Smith farm. In fact there is another smaller stream which joins it just where the Killian and Smith farms meet, and according to Mr. Killian water is being backed up both of these courses. Originally the main stream is claimed to have measured 10 to 12 feet in width. Now it is difficult to state the measurement, but it is estimated on the Killian farm the water has extended about 150 feet back from the original bank. And all because the long dam takes a zig-zag course through the meadow and woodlands! The dam, which is several feet high, is located near the main highway, and is about 300 yards below the private roadway on the Killian property which it has been necessary to rebuild.

Visitors are many to the three farms now, and the usual question that is expected of any stranger who appears is "Where can I find the beavers?" or "Where are the beaver dam and lodges?" These questions can be answered, but there is one question that no one on the three farms in question, or members of the rod and gun club seem to be able to answer. That is relative to the name of the creek where the beaver family has made its abode. It seems to be nameless. According to the Tullytown residents the creek comes from the Bolton Farm section of Emile.

Two beaver lodges have been seen to date, one in the Smith section of the creek, and another in the canal just above the Smith place. The dams have been several in number, however, the original one being small, with each succeeding one becoming larger as the beavers moved to a different location on the stream.

Queries put to those who have been watching the results of efforts by the beavers have been to the effect that water in all probability will not extend over a wider area. It is the consensus of opinion that as the beavers have nearly exhausted the supply of trees and roots they particularly like near their lodge, that they might move to another section of the creek, and not build the dam any higher. But one person's guess is as good as that of another's.

When the beavers arrived in the Tullytown area in the Fall of 1934 it was thought there were but two. By last gunning season the number had grown, and was estimated at eight or 10, with the present number thought to be 12 or 14. The Edgely Rod and Gun Club members are most anxious to have the colony remain and grow, and are therefore willing to do anything within their power to prevent the busy family from being ousted.

By authority from state game officials, the land in the area was posted by a deputy from the Edgely club. The fine is $100 for anyone found molesting a beaver lodge, attempting to break the dams, or otherwise doing harm to the animals or their homes.

It was in the Winter of 1933-34 that attention was first called to the colony which had located on Queen Ann Creek, near the farm of Chapman & Baker, Emile. Previous to that none had located in Bucks County for many decades. In the Spring of 1935 it was conceded that the beaver colonies had become firmly established in Bucks County, with some having built lodges and dams on "Comforts Creek," Fallington, where the properties of Joseph Smith, Joseph Bux, and Harry Walker join. And so the opinions differ. The beavers are welcomed by some; and disliked by others because of the damage caused by the indefatigable creatures.

Paris, June 25—With hundreds of thousands of francs worth of perishable goods consigned to Algeria rotting in the holds of ships in the Marseilles harbor, France today was shut-off from her African colonial empire. The seamen remained in occupation of 68 red-flagged vessels, in spite of an agreement for shorter hours and more pay, reported to have been forced on ship owners.

MRS. CRABTREE MAKES SUMMERTIME PIES IN THE REFRIGERATOR

Dear Friends in Bristol:

Pies are just as popular in the summer time as in the winter. We only want to change the method of making and the ingredients.

Bake a number of pie shells at a time, varying the filling to suit the occasion. If these are kept in an airtight container they will remain fresh for days. Should you wish a double assurance of their freshness, reheat and cool before filling.

Chiffon pies are made with a gelatine base. When recipe calls for fruit juice, heat only sufficient to melt gelatine as heat destroys the vitamin content. Lemon juice added to fresh fruits will bring out the flavor.

Egg whites may be folded into the pie filling. This makes a fluffy mixture that does not deteriorate with standing, as when the pie is topped with a meringue.

Chocolate Chiffon Pie

One tablespoon gelatine, one-fourth cup cold milk, one and three-fourths cups milk; three-fourths cup sugar, two ounces chocolate, two egg yolks, slightly beaten; two egg whites stiffly beaten, one baked pie shell, one cup heavy cream.

Soften gelatine in one-fourth cup cold milk. Combine one and three-fourths cups milk, sugar, and chocolate, and cook over low heat until very smooth. Pour over slightly beaten egg yolks and cook one minute longer. Remove from fire, pour over gelatine, and stir until dissolved. Cool. Fold in beaten egg whites. Pour into cooled baked pie shell. Top with whipped cream. Chill in refrigerator.

Baked Pie Shell

One and one-fourth cups sifted flour, one-half teaspoon salt, one-third cup shortening, approximately three tablespoons cold water.

Sift flour and salt together. Add one-half of shortening to flour. Cut in with pastry blender or two knives until mixture looks like meal. Add remaining shortening and continue cutting until particles are size of navy bean. Sprinkle water, one tablespoon at a time over mixture. With a fork work lightly together until all particles are moistened and in lumps. Add just enough water to moisten. Press dampened particles together into a ball. Do not handle dough any more than necessary.

Lemon Fluff Pie

Three eggs, one-half cup sugar, one lemon, one-half cup sugar, grated rind of lemon, three tablespoons hot water.

Beat in top of double boiler egg yolks until thick and lemon colored. Add one-half cup sugar gradually, juice and grated rind of one lemon. Add hot water and cook all, over hot water to a thin custard. Beat egg whites stiff but not dry, add one-half cup of sugar gradually. When stiffly beaten, fold in the custard mixture and mix well. Pour into a baked pastry shell and brown in a moderately hot oven of 375 degrees F.

Butterscotch Pie

Four tablespoons cornstarch, two tablespoons flour, one-half cup cold milk, one and one-half cups hot milk, two tablespoons butter, one and one-fourth cups brown sugar, one beaten egg, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon vanilla, one-half cup whipped cream.

Mix cornstarch, flour and half cup of cold milk. Stir this paste into hot milk and cook, stirring constantly until thickened. Melt butter and add brown sugar. Stir until well dissolved. Add beaten egg. Combine mixtures and cook until thickened. Add salt and vanilla. Cool and top with whipped cream. Toasted pecans may be sprinkled over top.

Peach Delight Tarts

One can sliced peaches, one and one-fourth tablespoons cornstarch, one tablespoon sugar, one tablespoon lemon juice, two teaspoons butter, toasted coconut, whipped cream.

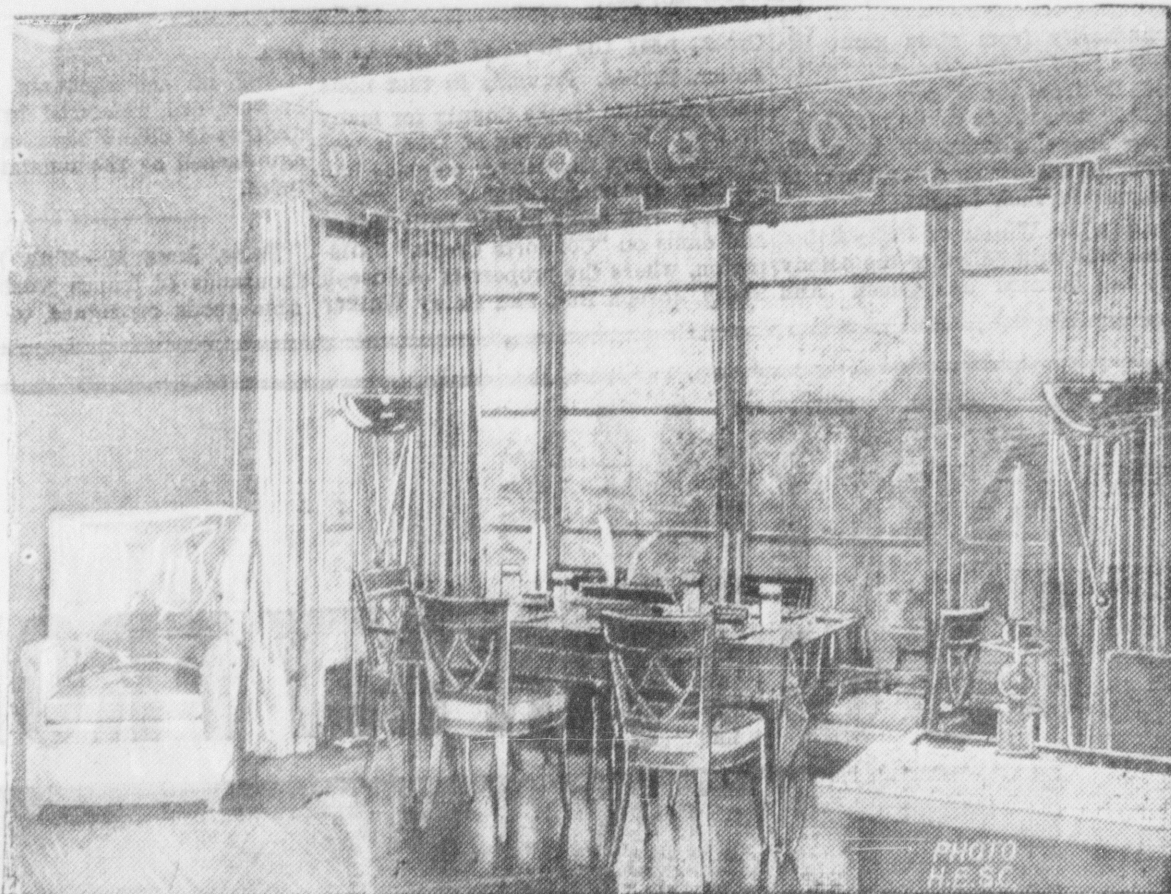

Drain peaches. Mix juice with cornstarch and sugar. Cook, stirring until transparent. Remove from heat. Add lemon juice, butter and salt. Add peaches and chill. Fill baked tart shells, top with whipped cream and sprinkle toasted coconut around edges. A flower made of peach petals with a raisin center would be an attractive topping for this tart.

To Freshen Parsley

If parsley is held under water while stems are being cut, it will last longer, and hold its color.

EATING IN THE SUN

Foods seem to be more appetizing when the table is set with cool linens and crystal and eaten out of doors. Create that outdoor feeling by placing the table near the windows.

LITTLE MISTRESS DOES HER FIRST COOKING

Cooking Is Fun When It's A Game Of Housekeeping

The first cooking lesson of any little girl is most important. Plenty of time and plenty of patience are the teacher's prime requisites. Simple recipes are essential but there must be some glamour to the finished product if the lesson is to be successful.

While Mother is making ice cream, Daughter could make the sauce as follows:

Chocolate Sauce

Two squares of chocolate, one cup sugar, one and one-half teaspoon cornstarch, one cup boiling water.

Mix the cornstarch and sugar together. In a double boiler melt the chocolate. Remove from heat. Add the boiling water, the sugar and cornstarch mixture, stirring constantly. Cook for five minutes over boiling water.

Baked Custard

Two eggs, one-fourth cup sugar, one-fourth teaspoon salt, two cups scalded milk, one-half teaspoon vanilla.

Into a mixing bowl break the eggs. Beat slightly. Add sugar and salt. Place milk in a saucepan and heat only until steam begins to rise. Pour milk over egg mixture, stirring constantly. Add vanilla. Pour into custard cups and bake in an oven at 250 degrees F. for 40 to 50 minutes. Test with a knife. If the knife comes out clean, the custard is solid.

The Oven Meal

All little girls like to have a part in planning meals. Most ovens are controlled as to temperature, and results are certain with no foods wasted. Custards may be mixed by Mother's helper and baked with the remainder of the meal.

Planning Her First Party

What pride goes with a party that was created by a child! Naturally their choice in foods must be guided.

but as they know only simple foods, this is no problem at all. Never attempt to substitute anything for ice cream. It simply cannot be done successfully.

Suggest to the little miss that one of the games at her party be the making of favors from gum drops. Card tables are covered with squares of bright colored oil cloth. Furnish plenty of gum drops, all shapes and sizes, marshmallows, also tooth picks. These may be fashioned into animals, men and birds and appeal to children.

Sandwiches should be simple. Cut them in fancy shapes with the cookie cutters. These may be prepared by the child after instructions have been given as to cutting the bread so as not to be wasteful. The child should place the sandwiches on the plate for serving, so as to teach her the importance of the appearance of food.

A Party Menu

Sandwiches in Fancy Shapes
Fruit Punch
Ice Cream Cake Candles
Birthday Cake

One cup shortening, two cups sugar, three-fourths cup milk, three and one-half cups flour, three teaspoons baking powder, six egg whites, one teaspoon vanilla, one teaspoon salt.

Cream shortening, sugar, vanilla and salt until light and fluffy. Add alternately the flour which has been sifted with the baking powder and milk. Beat until thoroughly mixed after each addition. Beat the egg whites until stiff but not dry. Fold into mixture. Bake in a round cake pan at a temperature of 325 degrees F. for 45 to 60 minutes. Frost with a White Icing.

Cinnamon Toast

Remove crust from sliced bread. Cut into three strips. Toast. Spread with butter, cinnamon and sugar. Return to oven to caramelize sugar. Sugar and cinnamon mixed in proportions, one teaspoon cinnamon, one tablespoon of sugar. This may be mixed and kept in a sifter can for future use.

PROCEDURE FOR INFORMAL DINNER

There is a great deal of pleasure in entertaining informally at home. Of course, there are a number of "do's" and "don'ts" for the most enjoyable dinner.

Invite guests who are congenial and ones that have a common interest. A small group of agreeable people is a pleasure to both the guests and the hostess.

Your most attractive china, crystal and linens are used. The table is decorated with flowers which should be low enough for the guests to see over. Place plates are not used, but bread and butter plates with butter knives are placed on the table.

Serve the fruit or vegetable juice cocktail with crackers or canape accompaniment, in the living room or on the terrace. This service allows the hot foods to be placed on the table before the guests come into the dining room and saves confusion when there is no maid. A fruit cup should be served in the dining room as the first course.

The meat course is served by the host, the maid passing the plate to the guest. If there is no maid, the host carves and serves the meat and the vegetables. If the host prefers, the vegetables may be passed around the table from guest to guest. They are then placed on the table in front of the host, or on the sideboard.

Salad may be served with the dinner or as a separate course. Green salads with a French dressing are preferable.

The dessert course should be light and not overly rich. Sherbet with wafers is a pleasing finish. Coffee may be served at the table or in the living room, the latter lending an air of charm and hospitality.

The menu for an informal dinner should include four or five courses, simple food, tasty and well balanced.

BUFFET SUPPERS

Informal entertaining is the only way to dispense hospitality during the summer months. Your guests will appreciate ease and freedom first; then the foods.

It is an excellent rule for a hostess to "have a good time" at her own party. This naturally takes planning, but when accomplished, not only yourself but everyone else is assured of enjoying themselves at your parties.

Planning the Menu

Simple but tasty foods are always the best rule. A large variety is unnecessary. One hot food is a good rule. This may be a casserole dish; a creamed egg, fish, cheese, or meat served in a chafing dish; or sandwiches toasted on a table grill.

Cold meats in an assortment are more appetizing than one variety. These may be sliced ham, liver sausage, bologna, chicken loaf, veal loaf pressed beef, spiced beef, or numberless others, found in a meat market.

A whole baked ham is ideal for a buffet party. This should be baked slowly in its natural juices. A top coating of one cup of brown sugar, two tablespoons of mustard, and cider vinegar sufficient to make a heavy paste, adds to the flavor and when browned gives a delectable glaze. The ham should be garnished with fruits, or some green raw vegetable such as watercress, nests of lettuce filled with tomato aspic, thick slices of tomatoes decorated with piquant mayonnaise or parsley.

Hot Crusty Biscuits

Hot biscuits, buttered, are a welcome treat at any kind of an informal supper. These biscuits may be made well ahead of time, brushed over with a melted shortening, placed in the refrigerator and baked just as wanted. This is only possible with certain types of baking powder, so be sure of the leavening before this kind of biscuit making is attempted. Biscuits should be taken from the refrigerator and allowed to reach room temperature before baking. This takes about 30 minutes.

Variations in biscuit making are simple, but add much to the feast. Cheese biscuits are tasty with fruit salads, graham or wheat biscuits are delicious with game suppers. For serving with a baked ham, try rolling

COMMUNICATION

Bar Harbor, Maine,
June 18, 1936.

Editor Courier:

Why are people so anxious to discard the Constitution, many of them not having taken the trouble to read it? Is it the present mania to discard the old for the new? If so, they will find as much that is vital for these days as it was in the old days. They apparently do not realize that more than half of the Constitution is concerned with human rights. They do not realize that the Constitution protects practically every single thing that we want in life. By that, I mean, the right of the people to personal liberty, freedom to trade and labor to earn and possess property and keep their savings, and to the sanctity of their home. Can anyone want more than this?

The Constitution was written with a simplicity, a clarity and an earnestness that is neither old nor new. It is ageless, and it must never be taken from us. There are very many people who really have not the time to read the Constitution in these busy days, and for them Mr. Frederick J. Stimson (the greatest Constitutional lawyer in the country), has put out a leaflet which is a digest of the Constitution and giving the crux of it in a few short statements.

If anyone cares to have this leaflet of the Constitution of the United States of America, in so far as it protects liberty and private rights, I will be glad to give it (free) to anyone sending me a self-addressed large envelope (three cents).

Very sincerely yours,
E. B. PROCTER.

SAFE!

Pennant honors hang in the balance while the crowd waits breathless for the umpire's decision. What's that he said... SAFE! Hurry!! Our team wins the pennant for the third consecutive year. Ball players are either safe or out upon reaching a base. Insurance companies are somewhat similar—pick the safe one every time.

It is safe to insure with us for we receive many letters similar to this one:

"It is with pleasure that I write to you and advise you that I was beneficiary on the policy of my Dad, John Kanigowski, of 222 W. Poplar Street, Shenandoah, Pa., who was insured with your company, under policy numbers Industrial No. 670549 and State Mutual No. 290594.

This claim was more than settled in a prompt and courteous manner which proved that your companies are prompt in making settlements on all just claims, and both my family and I can recommend your companies to any one wishing or needing Industrial Insurance.

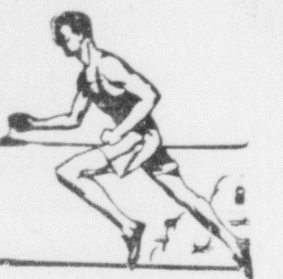

Respectfully yours,
ADAM KANIGOSKI."

Your box-score in life will be higher if you insure today.

HEBREW TEAM TO PLAY LANDRETHS' SEEDS HERE

Tomorrow, Friday evening, 6.30, at the Landreth Ball Park, Landreth's Seeds will play the Young Men's Hebrew Association of Philadelphia. This club is composed of the best Hebrew baseball players to be obtained in the city of Philadelphia, and the club has had an enviable record this season, defeating many of the best clubs in Philadelphia and outside teams such as Royersford, Woodstown Aviators and other towns having teams of equal caliber.

The Young Men's Hebrew Association team was supposed to appear at the Landreth Ball Park two weeks ago, but the game was rained out.

On Sunday, at 3 p. m., Landreth's Seeds will play Wissinoming of the Quaker City League. Last year Wissinoming defeated the Farmers, 5-4, so this game should be a cracker-jack.

Saturday the Farmers will be out of town playing the South Phillies at 12th and Biegler streets.

HULMEVILLE-DOLINGTON GAME EAGERLY AWAITED

Preparations are being made for the final game of the Delaware River Baseball League which will be played on the Hulmeville diamond Sunday afternoon between Hulmeville A. A. and the Dolington Cornhuskers. A large crowd is expected to witness the tilt because of the standing "grudge" which exists between the two clubs.

The proceeds of the game will go to the family of Lawrence "Pete" Devlin. Devlin was killed by an automobile several weeks ago. He helped to twirl the Hulmeville team to pennants and championships in the Lower Bucks County and Delaware River Leagues and was a very likeable chap.

The game will count in the final standing of the teams and the averages of the players will be included in the first half list. The umpires, scorers, players, and everyone connected with the game are donating their services to the tilt. There will be no set price for admissions, fans giving whatever they can afford.

Both team managers promise to have their full line-ups in the fray. Manager Jack McGary will use Chappie Matthews on the hill with Manager Howard Black tossing them for the Hulmeville nine. Fans of this vicinity will never forget the instances in the play-off of last season when Black accused Matthews of trying to "bean" him and chased him with a bat and how several other players became involved in the feud and almost came to blows and when the umpires threatened to call the playoff games unless the players stopped their fighting and played ball. That is a typical Dolington-Hulmeville game and plenty of action is expected this week-end.

At conclusion of final Olympic gymnastic tryouts for men in New York, this team of eight was selected to compete for honors in Olympic games in Berlin. The winning gymnasts are (l. to r. front row) Arthur Pitt and Alfred A. Jochim, of the Swiss Turn Verein of New Jersey, and Chester W. Phillips, of Temple University. Back row (l. to r.) Frank Cumiskey, Swiss Turn Verein; Kenneth Griffin, Los Angeles A. C.; Fred H. Meyer, New York Turn Verein; George Wheeler, New York Community House, and Frank Haulbold, Swiss Turn Verein.

TO RESUME MIDGET RACING ON RECONDITIONED TRACK

TRENTON, June 25.—With the track thoroughly reconditioned midget auto racing will be resumed at the Capital City Speedway, Princeton avenue and Spruce street, Trenton, tomorrow night. This will be the second in a series of weekly events.

A hard clay racing surface on the oval speedway makes for faster racing. Despite the handicap of loose cinders that held up the start of the races last Friday until the cinders were scraped from the track, fast and exciting tilts were the order of the evening. The crowd was continually on their feet shouting for this or that favorite and all the finishes were closely contested.

Bob Swanson, Pacific coast champion, established the fastest time in the time trials, making the course in 19.97-100 seconds. There is hardly any doubt that the time, as fast as it is, will be bettered under the new racing conditions.

Duke Nalon, Ronnie Householder, Bozo Balus, Bob Meyer, Frank Reeder, in fact all the stars who competed last week will return.

Next Monday night, sanctioned motorcycle races will be held with a program of eighteen events, featuring the speediest dare-devils in the game.

Competition in both events starts at 8.45 p. m. with the time trials for the midget autos starting at 7 p. m.

ODDS AND ENDS FROM SPORTS

NEW YORK, June 25.—Italian baseball fans long since have accepted Joe Di Maggio of the Yanks as one of their own nationality who is the standout rookie in the American league. . . . Now they are turning their attention to Les Scarsella of the Cincinnati Reds as the best Italian first year man the National has seen in many a day. . . . He's 22 years old, stands 5 ft. 11, weighs 188 and was a three letter star at Pinole, Calif., high school, where he captained basketball and track teams. . . . He's a left-hander and exceptionally fast on the bases and at first base, where he has been installed as the Red Sox regular. . . . With Wilmington in the Piedmont league last season, he led the circuit in runs scored, in doubles, triples and stolen bases. . . . He batted .358. . . . He was hitting around .350 with Toronto when the Reds brought him back to the big time recently after a brief try-out earlier in the season.

Pitcher Joe Bowman of the Phillies wants to become a fiction writer. . . . Babe Herman chose baseball, instead of engineering, as a career (and look at all the knots fly balls have put on his head). . . . Besides being a first baseman, fair country hitter and singer, Sam Leslie of the Giants can make music on a banjo, guitar or uke. . . . Lou Gehrig of the Yanks is credited with the prize play of the season here at the stadium. . . . The sacks were loaded with Indians, the score was tied and it was the ninth inning. . . . Earl Averill smashed what should have been a clean hit to Gehrig's right. . . . The big first sacker speared the ball with his back to the plate. . . . Peering over his shoulder, and off balance he snapped a strike home and made a force out to send the game into extra innings. . . . Babe Ruth was among 35,000 who set up a din that could be heard all the way to Hoboken as a tribute to the Iron Horse.

George (Twinktoes) Selkirk, who plays the Babe's old right field spot is in solid with the Babe's old friends out there in the bleachers. . . . When he hit an important double recently the bleacher customers went wild when he returned to the outfield. . . . He and the customers out there talk back and forth on the best of terms throughout the games. . . .

Moves Into Third Day

By George R. Holmes
Philadelphia, June 25.—The Democratic Convention moved into its third session today.

Both Senator Barkley, the keynoter, and Senator Robinson, as permanent chairman, proclaimed that the New Deal had no apology and would make no retreat. Their speeches constituted the New Deal's answer to the Republican attack as emphasized by the Cleveland Convention. Barkley sounded the keynote "no apology and no retreat." This was the refrain Senator Robinson expressed again last night in his speech as permanent chairman of the Convention.

Robinson made a little fun of the Republican side of a currency plank. He said: "Much will be heard of sound money during this campaign when world economies are approaching their worst. Great Britain and many other nations went off the gold standard and resolved to a managed currency. The advantage they thus derive in trade and commerce over other peoples still dealing under the gold standard becomes manifest to prevent foreign trade from being taken over by competitors, and to free from contraction what reduced the creating; on unsound currency."
